Fifty Years of Commitment to the Community!
Mission

TO HELP PEOPLE ENRICH AND ADVANCE THEIR LIVES & COMMUNITIES
In July 2019, the May Dugan Center celebrated its 50th Anniversary! Since 1969, the Center has served individuals and families in need as a result of President Johnson’s “War on Poverty” initiative to create multi service centers to address large pockets of poverty. The City of Cleveland Department of Community Development and a group of concerned West Side residents pulled together to lobby for federal funds to build our center at 4115 Bridge Avenue in Ohio City. Since the doors opened in 1975, thousands and thousands of individuals have passed through the lobby for essential services.

Today, our services include behavioral health counseling (for mental health and substance use disorders), case management for teen-aged parents and other vulnerable populations, emergency food and clothing assistance, senior outreach, trauma services for crime survivors, adult literacy and workforce development, and much more. Fifty years later, 6,500 individuals annually find resources and care in our building and out in the community. The May Dugan Center continues to be a vital pillar for the Near West Side and is needed now more than ever.

Over the past five decades, the May Dugan Center has a rich history of working with local officials, including seven different Cleveland Mayoral administrations and several City Council members. Council President Kevin Kelley and Councilperson Jasmin Santana, for instance, both served as members of May Dugan Center’s Board of Directors. Councilman Michael Zone, current Councilman Matt Zone’s father, was one of the Center’s founding members. Our residing Councilman Kerry McCormack is committed to our mission to make sure that Ward 3 residents have access to critical services. Former City Council member and Congresswoman, Mary Rose Oakar, played a significant role in building the Center and continues to be an advocate for May Dugan Center to this day.

Throughout the past fifty years, May Dugan Center has been fortunate to have a diverse representation of people serving on the Board of Directors and hundreds of dedicated staff members and volunteers who deliver program services, raise essential funds and provide oversight of organizational governance. Today, the Center employs nearly 40 staff members and has the highest operating budget in the history of the Center. This is truly a reflection of the dedication of our staff, board, and the many donors, government and civic entities and foundations that support our efforts.

The May Dugan Center is proud to have over 45 community partners that work collaboratively with us to ensure clients throughout our communities are adequately served. In light of the recent COVID-19 pandemic, our Center has managed to adjust rapidly and safely to continue to provide the necessary services and programs to our clients. We are very grateful for the support we receive and hope that you will continue to be an advocate for the May Dugan Center.

Thank You.

The Near West Side Multi-Service Corporation was established in 1969 where the current facility was built on Bridge Avenue in the Ohio City community. It was named the May Dugan Multi-Service Center as a tribute to May and her life-time work as a one-person counselor and advocate for her neighbors in need.

Her compassion is legendary. At one time, 25 penniless and homeless people were housed and fed in May’s attic, basement and garage. Countless other times, when neighbors needed food for their children, they came to May; she always provided assistance, even if it had to come from her own meager resources.

In addition, when someone was charged justly, or unjustly, May knew where to go downtown and who should be seen. The late Abe Dudnick, one of Cleveland’s most eminent attorneys, described May Dugan as having “a combination of intelligence, tenacity, and charity, unmatched in her fight for the down and out and the forgotten.”

In 1932, May opened the first of a series of Irish neighborhood taverns, with the last one established in 1940 on W.58th and Detroit, and known as Dugan’s. Under May’s proprietorship, these establishments filled an important social need in the community; equally important, they offered a venue for May to help her neighbors find jobs, food and clothing, and legal advice.

May Dugan’s mother and father came to Cleveland in 1882, arriving in a horse-drawn wagon from Detroit, and part of the Irish migration from Achill Island on the northwest coast of Ireland. May, born in 1892, married William Reynolds in 1910 at St. Malachi’s Church. They had six children: James, Hazel, Francis, Rita, Hubert, and Mary Jane. Her memory is still honored by the grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the people she helped many years ago; they still remember their parents talking about hard times and the “generous warmhearted Irish lady who put food on their table when no one else cared.”

Behavioral Health Services provides adults, children and adolescents with a comprehensive and culturally competent mental health treatment model that is tailored to each person’s individual needs.

- Behavioral Health Services provides help to all low to moderate income people who are experiencing behavioral health challenges, many of whom have also been diagnosed with substance use disorder. May Dugan Center assists clients in improving their mental state and supporting them to become healthy members of the community.

- Case Management Services, offered in both English and Spanish, helps clients find affordable housing and employment, with case managers navigating housing programs and assisting in traversing employment options.

- Substance Use Disorder Treatment meets community needs by addressing the debilitating results of addiction. Through individual counseling, Intensive Outpatient programming, and support groups, the Behavioral Health Services provides easily accessible treatment to clients who face barriers to getting the help they need.

- LGBTQ Community Support provides lesbian, gay, bi-sexual, and transgender (LGBT) adults and youth with both counseling for long-term HIV/AIDS survivors, as well as facilitating Gay Straight Alliance (GSA) groups in schools to address the unique barriers and issues that face LGBT youth.

Keith’s Story

Keith, faced with surviving a drug overdose and his wife’s death, was supported by May Dugan Center’s addiction services, one-on-one counseling, and case management. May Dugan Center’s other wrap around programs like Food, Clothing & Fresh Produce and Education Resource Center empowered him to focus on getting well. Today, Keith is employed, and no longer homeless. “May Dugan Center made it so easy for me to just get my life back together,” said Keith. “All you gotta do is show up and have a willingness to change and to be better. If you’re trying to do something positive with your life, this place can help you.”

“This place saved me in ways I didn’t even know I needed saving...there are people here that I can always come to for whatever is going on. They always help me through it.”

– Keith

Emily was in an accident that left her severely disabled, including being visually impaired. She now lives solely off of her disability income and food stamps. May Dugan Center’s Food, Clothing & Fresh Produce distribution is important in ensuring that Emily and her sister Cheryl have enough to eat at the end of each month.

“\textit{If this wasn’t here I would be in trouble...I’m very glad a system like this is in place to help me and my sister--who have no other way to feed ourselves--in the last part of the month.}”

– Emily

Offered in collaboration with the Greater Cleveland Food Bank and the Hunger Network, May Dugan Center’s Basic Needs Programming ensures a safety net for the most vulnerable individuals, families, seniors, children and veterans in the communities it serves, with monthly Food, Clothing & Fresh Produce distribution among low-income residents.

May Dugan Center’s Food, Clothing & Fresh Produce distribution is important in ensuring that Emily and her sister Cheryl have enough to eat at the end of each month.

The volunteers and staff here are extraordinarily friendly. “They will put their hand on your shoulder and talk to you like a person,” said Cheryl. “Places like this are important because there is quality food. You don’t want to pay more in hospital bills than with food in the first place if you get sick.”

May Dugan Center’s Health & Wellness Program offers health and wellness services at the same times that food, clothing and produce are offered. This holistic approach serves low-income people facing barriers to health services and is an effort to reduce visits to local hospital emergency rooms. Through preventive health screenings for blood pressure, cholesterol, glucose, and Type II Diabetes, the Health & Wellness Program equips people with information needed to make healthy life choices.

- Senior Health & Wellness initiative. This program was developed in response to community needs and serves low-income seniors in Cleveland’s Near West Side. The goal of May Dugan Center’s Senior Health & Wellness Program is to give low income seniors the tools and resources to manage their financial, physical and emotional wellbeing, and deepen social connectedness in order to promote aging in place.

CJ’s Story

After her husband’s death, CJ had to get out and meet people. CJ explains that the Senior’s on the Move, May Dugan Center’s aging adult program, is a lifesaver because of the friendships that she’s made and the activities that help her stay active and connected. CJ, age 63, has participated in the senior program for 3 years.

“I would be bored to death… the biggest killer for seniors is not so much chronic illness or diseases as it is loneliness.”

– CJ
As a local pioneer in trauma-informed education, May Dugan Center’s Education Resource Center is an Adult Literacy and Workforce Development Program that works with the city’s most vulnerable, with the goal of helping them transition to post-secondary education and the workforce. The Education Resource Center uses adult literacy and high school equivalency as a springboard to career training or post-secondary education. A full range of adult learning options are offered, including test preparation, college and vocational entrance support, adult and financial literacy, personal enrichment, and homework support for parents.

- The Workforce Development Service is a person-centered approach that connects high barrier, low income individuals to meaningful entry-level employment, assist them to living wage jobs and careers, and promotion to higher wage jobs.

- English for Speakers of Other Languages assists people to learn how to read, write, understand and speak English, to help them prepare for the workforce, a career and citizenship.

Franklin’s Story

Grappling with the constant stress of alcoholism, little education, and unstable housing, Frank felt there was little hope for his future. May Dugan Center helped Franklin transform his life. He enrolled in the Education Resource Center for GED™ tutoring and received addiction services. “For years I struggled with math, but when I put in the time - [the teachers] put in the time with me.”

Now, Frank is over a year sober, received his GED™ certification and is employed full time at Swagelock. He explains, “I have a lot more confidence, honestly, I feel like I’m gonna be so successful, like the sky’s the limit.” For the first time in years, he has hope.
Trauma Recovery Center begins operations

The Trauma Recovery Center is a partnership with law enforcement, hospitals, and other community agencies to provide immediate and critical assistance to victims and survivors of crime. Primary services are immediate crisis management and safety planning, and law enforcement advocacy. Other services include trauma-based education and support services, advocacy and stabilization planning, coordination of care, victim’s compensation, and long-term stabilization assistance.

In the October of 2018, Cassie was shot in the head. She was left with nothing – no clothes, no shelter, no food and the threat of losing her job. While hospitalized, May Dugan Center’s Trauma Recovery Center team made sure that Cassie would not be left homeless and would have the necessary care once she was released.

The Trauma Recovery specialist supported Cassie through recovery, the prosecution of her perpetrator, and with emotional and mental counseling. In 2019, the Trauma Recovery team was there to hold Cassie’s hand as she confronted her assailant at his sentencing.

MomsFirst program, in partnership with the city of Cleveland Department of Public Health, is on the frontlines, working with parenting and pregnant teens with the goal of reducing those infant deaths. Working closely with the Cleveland Metropolitan School District and Charter Schools within the City of Cleveland, MomsFirst provides services including risk assessments, home visits, case management, health education, perinatal depression screening, and emotional support.

Shenetta is a MomsFirst certified Community Health Worker. Over the last 6 years she has supported pregnant teens and makes sure they are learning how to be a good mom. Shenetta, who received services from this same program when she was a teen mother, explains that pregnancy should be the happiest time of a mother’s life. Not only does Shenetta give the teens the emotional support a pregnant woman needs, but she connects teens to resources that ensures their safety and wellbeing. There are many services that the program provides, such as learning how to breastfeed, and screening for depression.
On June 28th 2019, May Dugan Center celebrated its heritage with the 6th Annual May Dugan Center Irish Roots Festival. The 80’s Alternative Band once again kept the crowds entertained while Sparky B emceed. Thank you to everyone who attended the 6th annual fundraising event! A BIG thank you to our presenting sponsor, Ted & Co. Realty, and to all of our sponsors and table supporters for their continuing support. Your financial contribution is what helps make our programs possible!

10TH ANNUAL TREE LIGHTING CEREMONY

10th Annual Tree Lighting Ceremony was hugely successful with Santa Claus making a guest appearance. In its 10th year, over 300 people enjoyed being entertained by Elena Flauto, Urban Community School Choir and May Dugan Center’s very own Rhythm and Roots Senior Music Group. We are so grateful for the support of our sponsors, who are committed to helping people and building community. Together, we are helping make a difference in the lives of so many.

ADOPT–A–FAMILY PROGRAM

The Adopt-A-Family program is an opportunity for individuals, teams, companies and organizations to reach out and lift up those in need, either through direct adoption or financial contribution. In 2019, 167 children, adults, and seniors received gifts totaling over $8,350 in donations.

IN MEMORIAM

3/19/1940 – 8/22/2019

In memory of C. Carter McDaniel. On August 22, 2019, we said “so long,” to a beloved friend who shared his time, talent and treasure at the May Dugan Center. For several years, he volunteered with our food distribution program, collected clothing and other miscellaneous household items and generously made financial contributions that were matched by his former employer at the East Ohio Gas Company. He will be greatly missed.
